The Celiac Disease Center at Columbia University is one of only a few centers in the United States that provides comprehensive medical care, including nutrition, for adult and pediatric patients with celiac disease. All of the Center's research is into celiac disease—clinical epidemiology, and mechanisms of celiac disease and patient and physician education. The Center is diagnosing and treating more than 5000 patients annually from around the world.

On behalf of the entire staff, please accept our gratitude and best wishes for your commitment to celiac disease research. Friends and benefactors like you are critical to our future growth, and we are most grateful for your support.

I wish you all the best for a healthy and enjoyable summer season!

Warmest regards,

Peter H. R. Green, MD
